SECOND PITTSBURG GAME. New Torks Resume Their March of Defeat, Being Beaten by the Cincinnatis St. Louis gen Win From the Bostons and the Chi-tagos Drop a Game to the Philadelphias. No hing seems to be able to stop the onward screen of the champion Brooklyns. They clased another game to their credit yesterday by defenting the highly rated Pittsburgs, but as the Philadelphias continue to place victories to their credit. Hanion's men have not been able, during the past few days, to make any gain on the leaders. The defeat of the cheages at the hands of the Quakers forces then back into fourth place, the St. Louis team stepping into third place by their victory earn support Bostons, who seem to be in a fair say to break records in the way of straight defeats. The New Yorks, after winning their first game at Cincinnati resumed their old rôle of lesers yesterday. The results

PITTSBURG, May 22 — Brooklyn outgeneralled Pitsburg to-day and won with fewer hits. In the first imming after O'Brien had been retired williams knocked a long fly to Jones. Cross made a pretense of scooping a grounder and Carge who heard the crack of the bat but did not see the bail stood at second while Jones's throw was rolling to first for a double play. The Champions guyed the Pirates' manager unmercivily Mitson's triple and a fly outgood Brooklyn s first run. Tannehill forced in two more in the fourth after having a row with Hurst Singles by Cross, DeMont and Jones scored the fourth one. A base on balls, williams's long fly and Cooley's hitscored Pittsburg's only run. The score.

It is understood that they had an offer of an engagement with that team during the summer, and that they intended to play there as soon as the college season closed.

Toward the Boston first has man in speaking of Tenney, the Boston first baseman, in speaking of his trouble with Fred Clarke in Pittsburg the other day, said to a Chicago writer. I don't see how Clarke cuid have spiked me unless he was doing it for spite work. He says he didn't do it purposely but I think differently. It was a wide throw and I reached for it and just had my toe on the bag. He was out two steps from the bag, and yet he took the inside path and made the jump on my foot."

The attendance had picked up somewhat when this bout ended, there being about 1,200 spectators in the house. In the absence of Young Starr, the Philadelphia lightwelcht, who failed to materialize, the management submitted Billy Ernst, the "Bushwick Dutchman," to meet McPartiand. They met at catchweights and were to go twenty-flye rounds. When the men were introduced the crowd began to hoot and yell "Fake!" In the first round McPartiand drew the blood from Ernst's nose with a series of lefts. No damage was done in the second round. In the third McPartiand reached his man's face, neck and body with the left. Ernst was knocked down three times in the fourth round. He took a full count each time and when the bell rung he was hanging on in a clinch. In the fifth Ernst was knocked down three more times. In the sixth Ernst came up full of fight. In a half clinch he pounded the Kid's kidneys, but McPartland gave Ernst an awful punching, which quickly sent the latter to the floor heiless. Referee Madden then interfered and declared McPartland the winner.

WITH THE TROTTERS. Crack Teams on the Speedway-McMillan and Malacca Do Good Work.

H. O. Armour's brown trotters Bancroft and Erin G. met Thomas F. Russell's fast mares Maid Thorne, 2 17 2, and Princess Sprague on the Speedway again yesterday, and once more defeated them after a splendid struggle for the lead. The brush took place on the flat north of Washington Bridge, with the start at the bend and the finish at the point of rocks. The off horse of the Armour team was not moving as well as usual and nearly everybody expected to see the geldings beaten by the speedy mares. The Russell team appeared to be a trifle faster than their rivals, but they were not so steady going. After the four horses had trotted almost abreast for half a mile or more, one of the mares made a break. which gave the vetory to the geldings. McPartland Stops Ernst in the Sixth Round.

Kid McPartland, the local light weight, stopped Billy Ernst of Brooklyntin the sixth round at the Seaside Sporting Club, Coney Island, last night. Ernst was knocked down repeatedly and never received a chance. The fight was so one-sided that the spectators left the building grumbling. The unattractive card drew one of the smallest crowds ever seen in the big arena. About 700 persons were present when the preliminary was put on. This was a twelve-round affair at catchweights between Jack Ryan of Brooklyn and Dan McConnell of Philadelphia. William Madden was the referee and Joe Durn kept the time. In the tenth round, while McConnell was covered with blood and Ryan had sent him to the boards, the former's secondshire wup the sponge.

The attendance had picked up somewhat when this bout ended, there being about 1,200 spectators in the house. In the absence of Young Starr, the Philadelphia lightweight, who failed to materialize, the management submitted Billy Ernst, the "Bushwick Duichman" to meet McPartiand. They met at catchweights and were to go twenty-five rounds. When the men were introduced the crowd began to hoot and yell. "Pake." In the first round McPartiand drew the blood from Ernst's nose with a series of lefts. No damage was done in the second round. DOUBT OVER SUNDAY GAMES. Information From Paris Not Satisfactory to Managers of Our Athletic Teams.

Whatever information has been received from Paris regarding the request made by the Inter-collegate A. A. A. that the Sunday games at the international meeting in that city be abandoned is of such a contradictory and unsatisfactory nature that Manager Langenberg of the Princeton track team was in New York yesterday prepared to cancel all arrangements made for sending the team abroad. He first visited the day prepared to cancel all arrangements made for sending the team abroad. He first visited the office of A. G. Spalding, the director of sports for America, who is now at Paris trying to obtain the concessions desired by the American universities, but could not obtain any definite information from James E. Sullivan, who is in charge of Mr. Spalding's athletic affairs during his absence.

Mr. Sullivan said that he had cabled to Paris, asking the result of the negotiati ns, but had received no refly. From indirect sources it appears that the American director's efforts were only partially successful. The most the Exposition managers are said to have agreed to is to change as far as possible the finals of events occurring on Sunday to another day. This conditional surrender is by no means satisfactory to the managers of the majority of the American college teams, and unless the French authorities recede still further it is almost certain that the principal teams will not go abroad. It is pointed out that under such a provisional agreement as outlined in the brief cable despatches receive there the Exposition managers would have the American teams at their nervey if the trip to Paris was undertaken, and the athletes might have to compete on Sunday or remain idle after incurring the great expense of the journey, and watch the representatives of other nations carry off the honors.

Mr. Sullivan stated that the matter would be settled one way or the other when Director Spalding returns from Paris. He is expected to sail to-day, and the presumption is that a compromise has been effected which is of too complicated a nature to be properly defined in a cable message. This explanation was not sufficient for Manager Langenberg, who says that unless the request is granted immediately Princeton is prepared to give up the idea of sending a team, and he is anxious to obtain information at once, so that he can noticy the steamship company that the berths already engaged will not be required.

The Princeton manager also visited twenty-five mile race on the Coney Island cycle paths was brought up, because of the opposition to it manifested at the last meeting of the Good Roads Association. The subject was broached, but an explosion was prevented by the timely and diplomatic speech of George W. Shannon, chairman of the Race Committee. He said that opposition of the Good Roads individuals was unworthy of attention, as there was absolutely no danger of the race being interfered with by the city officials. Indignant delegates were converted to this view and so the matter was dropped with them. The association adopted resolutions in favor of the speedway, for ed resolutions in favor of the speedway for drivers as now planned on the Coney Island bonieward. The meeting was held at the sum-mer quarters of the association on the Coney
